

1. Laptop

2.
 - a. This can be located everywhere you want it to be and you can use it everywhere you want, it is now in my working room because I use it there
 - b. It makes it an interface to me because of all the buttons you control the laptop with and without them the laptop is useless 3.
 - Everybody that want or need to use it is the user.
 - Humans are connected to the laptop and internet by this interface
 - This interface affects the user on several ways because you can choose for yourself if you want to learn, think, see etc. from this interface.
 - The user interact with this interface by the keys and can also extend this by plugging in a mouse or drawing tablet.
 - The material properties of this interface are glass and aluminum on the outside and all sorts of technical material on the inside.

1. Coffee machine

2.

- a. This is located in the kitchen because this is the place where you make your coffee.
- b. It makes it an interface to me because by connecting with this machine you get your coffee made, for this you choose one of the buttons on top.

3.

- Everybody that wants to drink coffee
- Humans are connected to the coffee machine by this interface
- This interface affects the user by enjoying a cup of coffee, it makes the user feel good and it gives the user a moment of relaxing
- The user interact with this interface by the buttons.
- The material properties of this interface are mostly plastics.