

design a mask that hides your true identity, but represents you in a group.

As a person I am always doing everything in the last moment. I spend a lot of time thinking, overthinking and thinking again, but then suddenly in another moment I feel such a big surge of energy that I can spend all the remaining days working nonstop. The lines represent how my energy changes. In the beginning it goes smoothly and peacefully which means that right now I am just taking my time to think and analyse everything, but as the line goes further to the centre it changes to chaotic and energising which means that these days I can do everything what I was planning to do.
